

Announcing the Release of Two Essential Books for Worksite Safety

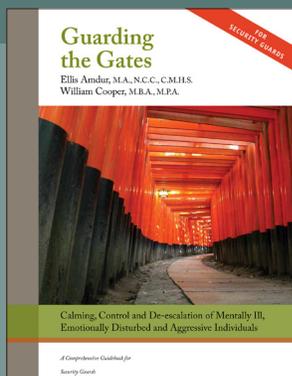

Edgework is proud to announce the release of two books by Ellis Amdur and William Cooper. Each book is a profession-specific, comprehensive guide to the de-escalation of aggressive and/or emotionally disturbed individuals. The latter refers to behaviors caused by mental illness or substance abuse, ranging from mild eccentricities to such profound disorders as psychosis, delirium and mania.

Each book includes all the information necessary to perform one's professional responsibilities at the highest level with such difficult individuals, whether they are employees, customers or strangers to the worksite. The authors have ensured that both books are of high quality. An organization that purchases these books for its employees is implicitly stating that their work is valued. Either book, inside and out, is a measure of the respect in which they are held.

A table of contents and a sample chapter of each book (and others in the series of eleven books) can be viewed at the Edgework website.

Safety at Work is written for Corporate Security Managers, Human Resources Staff, Executive Protection and others involved in Threat Management Professions

Guarding the Gates is written for Security Guards, who are the front line defense in places of business
