

Survival Skills for Police Marriages

Presented by Husband & Wife Team of
More Than A Cop©

“Mike and Althea combine their unique experiences as practitioners, educators and partners to facilitate this amazing experience. They are an engaging team and you will leave this class feeling truly “revitalized.”
- Sgt. Betsy Brantner Smith, Dave Smith and Associates

“Mike & Althea fully recognize that the job is a lot more dangerous emotionally than physically. This dynamic couple knows how to address the issues that many agencies (unfortunately) will not broach with their employees. Well done Althea and Mike and rest assured that we are big fans of the sage counsel you share.”
- Couch Sok, (Bruce Sokolove), Field Training Associates

Think law enforcement is a tough job? Marriage is tougher! At least, building a truly successful, long-term, "riding-out-the-storms" marriage is hard, demanding work.

So, if law enforcement and marriage are both difficult and demanding endeavors, how hard must it be to build a successful law enforcement marriage where one or both partners is an LEO? Apparently, very much so if the evidence is to be believed. With divorce rates far exceeding those of the general public, the unique stressors of a law enforcement career put police marriages at high risk of failure.

Survival Skills for Police Marriages is just the course to provide the insight and skills to make your marriage not just survive, but thrive. Designed with couples in mind, we invite officers and their spouses (or any significant other) to attend together. Sure, law enforcement and marriage might both be tough but, if done right, are exciting, fun, and deeply rewarding!

Officer Mike Wasilewski, MSW, has been with a large suburban Chicago department since 1996 and is an adjunct instructor at Northwestern College.

Althea Olson, LCSW, has been in private practice in the Chicago suburbs since 1996 providing psychotherapy. She is also trained in Critical Incident Stress Management.

Mike & Althea have been married since 1994 and are featured columnists for both LawOfficer.com and Officer.Com. Their articles are extremely popular and they now provide the same training and information in person throughout the United States. This dynamic team was recently featured at the 2010 ILEETA Conference & Exposition & for 2011.
