

TAKE YOUR LESS LETHAL INSTRUCTION TO THE NEXT LEVEL

ADVANCED LESS LETHAL – INSTRUCTOR LEVEL COURSE

Designed to provide instructors who have completed the Defense Technology Instructor Program with the most current and up-to-date training techniques in the field of less-lethal munitions. This course combines classroom lecture and range drills, with an emphasis on instructor development and tactics and includes comprehensive instruction in the technical, operational and tactical applications of OC, Specialty Impact Munitions, Chemical Agents and Distraction Devices.

Course Overview

The course is separated into two segments: lecture and range drills. The lecture portion of the class will focus on technical information, tactical considerations, table top exercises. It also covers the latest in case law and technology. To ensure students have a full understanding of the subject, they are then asked to “teach back” in their own words key concepts, decisions or instructors discussed during the lecture period. Range drills consist of a number of live-fire operational information, tactical application and scenario-based force-on-force training exercises. Participants use a mix of simunition and live ammunition, in addition to protective gear to role play through actual scenarios. Each scenario is recorded and, at the completion of each exercise, reviewed by the instructors.

Course Benefits:

- Work with force on force scenario based practical training and exposure drills improve execution
- Review Critical Incident debriefs, courtroom testimony and case law review
- Instruct on the proper handling and deployment of less lethal devices

Students that attend will get a one year diploma in SIM, CM and DD at the Operator level, or if you were previously an Instructor you will receive authorization for renewal for Instructor level status for three years.
