Our goal is to develop a state network of trainers who can deliver the Core Drug Endangered Children (DEC) Training within their communities and also connect with other DEC efforts taking place across the nation at the local, tribal, state and national level. This is a no-cost training and we will provide you with a certificate and an agenda for you to apply for credits to your continuing education organization. Lunch will be on your own.

To apply for this training, please email by September 6th, Kathryn Nicodemus at Knicodemus@spokanesherriff.org, Ph: 509-477-3238.

Please include your name, email address, organization and discipline. For more information on the Washington Alliance for Drug Endangered Children, go to www.wadecalliance.org

At the conclusion of your training, you will become Certified Instructors of the National CORE DEC Training Program and will become members of the National DEC Leaders Network, which connects the trainer with other trainers and professionals across the nation working on DEC efforts. Your goal will be to provide technical assistance or support to community when you present the training in your local, including tribal, communities which requires a collaborative partnership with National DEC and WADEC to help keep the trainers connected.
