Driver Simulator TRAINING

Enduris and WCIA are partnering up with Craig Bulkley of the Washington Criminal Justice Training Commission (WCJTC) to provide members with a unique driver simulator training that allows participants to explore driving in varied traffic and weather conditions.

The simulator is made up of three plasma TV screens (50-inch) along with a realistic interior that resembles that of an actual emergency vehicle. It comes complete with working mirrors, foot pedals, steering wheel, dashboard, gear shift and seat belt. Participants will get to navigate through various driving scenarios used to educate officers and test their knowledge on department polices while multi-tasking and driving in difficult driving conditions.

WCJTC believes that use of the simulator does an excellent job of teaching officers to drive in emergency situations.
