The Tacoma Police Department hosts:

SCHOOL SAFETY/RESPONSE TO SCHOOL VIOLENCE

June 19 & 20, 2014
Tacoma, Washington

Over the past decade, the United States has been faced with a rise in school violence. The most recent school shootings in Connecticut, Georgia and Pennsylvania have raised the awareness of this national issue. School districts and police departments alike are seeking solutions that would help deter and prevent school violence through intervention techniques that focus on improving school safety.

This 12 hour course offers a systemic approach to school safety that helps to clarify the roles of school districts, police departments, the community and the family in response to the increase of violence in the schools. This course is taught by the Chief of Police of the Dallas Independent School District. It is the 14th largest US school district with 158,000 students who are housed on 228 campuses.
