

Verbal Defense & Influence Training for Public Safety Professionals

Learn how to better address the spectrum of human conflict

January 27th, 2015 Kirkland, WA

Verbal Defense & Influence is designed to equip attendees to control verbal encounters. The core principles of Verbal Defense & Influence reduce the likelihood an interaction will escalate into conflict and/or become violent. The program provides officers and other public safety professionals with the verbal tactical tools necessary to successfully manage not only their routine assignments, but also the extraordinary confrontations in which they find themselves. In most cases challenging situations can be diffused. When words alone fail, officers are given the decision-making tactics required to justify enforcement taking action that includes the ability to disengage and/or escalate in order to take proper police action.

The core principles of Verbal Defense & Influence, which have been taught for over 30 years, are grounded in both academic research and real-world application. The structured framework in which these principles have been synthesized makes them simple to learn, remember and apply.

Verbal Defense & Influence uses Emotionally-Safe Performance Driven Instruction™, a unique approach to training that emphasizes student interaction, real-world simulations, skill practice, memorable stories and physical activity. This approach improves retention of the taught material and, more importantly, enhances the student's ability to actually perform the learned skills in their work and personal lives.

In our Practitioner and Instructor programs, our proprietary online technology enables the capture and sharing of video/audio role-play sessions, resulting in more efficient and effective learning.
