About The Class

This course is designed to serve as a full instructional class about how to successfully complete an Internet Crimes Against Children investigation. This course will include how to conduct luring and sexual exploitation of minor investigations. It will provide suggestions and ideas to consider when conducting these investigations which include, identifying the crime, proactive vs. reactive cases, chat techniques, interpreting information from the Internet, subpoenas and search warrants, interview and interrogation, seizing of evidence, forensics, report writing, defense interviews, court testimony, using the right hardware and software, working in a team environment, ethics and investigating other types of Internet crimes. This course will also deal with the stress and wellness issues that could affect officers when investigating these types of crimes.

This course is designed for law enforcement officers, first responders and detectives. The course is a full understanding of how to complete an Internet Crimes Against Children case from beginning to end. After students finish this course they will be provided with class material and the knowledge on how to execute an effective investigation.

About the Speaker

Retired Detective Chris Curley started his law enforcement career in 1991 and retired from the Phoenix Police Department in 2015. He worked on the Internet Crimes Against Children detail from 2001-2014. He is currently owns Triple Helix Investigations, LLC as a consultant and investigator. Chris Curley received specialized training in Internet crimes and served on a federal task force with the FBI. Chris Curley traveled across the country investigating Internet Crimes. Chris Curley has taught law enforcement personnel in suspect interview and interrogation and luring minors for sexual exploitation. The knowledge that Chris Curley has obtained over the many years investigating Internet crimes is beneficial to those already working these cases or have ever thought about becoming an ICAC investigator.
