

National Response Corporation (NRC) contingency plan updates

Ecology invites interested public and local and tribal governments to review and comment on National Response Corporation (NRC) Covered Vessels Washington State Contingency Plan updates. Washington Administrative Code (WAC) 173-182 and 173-186 requires oil handling facilities, pipelines, vessels and railroads to have a state-approved oil spill contingency plan that ensures their ability to respond to major oil spills.

Regulated companies are required to submit changes to Ecology, and updates may require a 30-day public review of the updates (WAC 173-182-142).

This is an annual update with significant changes. Specific changes that are open for comment are as follows:

- Response resources for the San Juan County Planning Standard Area shown on updated Planning Standard Spreadsheet.
 - NRC San Juan Island Planning Standard Spreadsheet
- Updated Planning Standard Spreadsheets for other areas.
 - NRC Commencement Bay Planning Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Dungeness Planning Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Grays Harbor Planning Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Neah Bay Planning Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Nisqually Planning Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Anacortes Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Blaine Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Harbor Island Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Ferndale Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Grays Harbor Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Port Angeles Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Richmond Beach Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
 - NRC Tacoma Transfer Site Standard Spreadsheet
- Spill Management Team Members
 - Chapter 2 NRC Spill Management Team
 - Chapter 3 NRC Spill Management Team

Additional response resource information that supports the updated planning standard spreadsheets can be viewed in National Response Corporation's Primary Response Contractor Application update, which is open for public comment through March 17, 2019.