The Ecology Building

Natural light inspired this large, modern building. It offers a variety of display areas, such as:

- Individual art works
- Small groupings
- Individual or group shows
(2D and 3D art)

Every day, more than one thousand professionals see these works. This includes people from several State agencies along with many visitors.

"The building itself presents both opportunities and limitations for the potential art work. The huge grey building seems to desire warmth and color in many areas. The scale of the building is quite large, and there are many potential sites for large installations..." Alfredo Arreguin

Alfredo Arreguin's tryptic painting Encantada Jungla.

Lacey Building's Permanent Art Collection

After the building's completion in 1993, three pieces of art were selected, commissioned and installed as part of a permanent public art collection. The commissioned artist is Alfredo Arreguin. Two paintings and a monumental stained-glass panel were created for specific sites in the lobby and dining room common areas.

Arreguin has received international attention with exhibitions in Mexico, France, Poland, Russia, and throughout the US. 47 permanent collections hold his work, including individual, corporate and museum collections. He has been commissioned by the White House, United Nations, and the WA State Governor's Office.

Information for Interested Artists

Sales - Any sales are between the artist and the interested viewer. Displays may include the artist's name and contact information. Ecology will not charge for works sold as a result of their display in the building.

Insurance and Security - The Ecology building is a public space and open to staff twenty-four hours a day. While Ecology will take precautions to ensure the safety of displayed artworks, the artist is responsible for insurance. A liability release will be signed before artwork is displayed in the building. The building's library offers a safe location for small or delicate pieces.

Display Systems and Installation - Ecology will provide hardware and lighting for displays. Transportation of artwork is the responsibility of the artist, unless other arrangements are made. The Arts Committee will install and remove artworks, although we welcome the artist's assistance.

Proposal Information

All proposals will be evaluated using the following guidelines:

- Quality - in terms of originality, technique/craft, expressiveness, and potential for stimulating the viewer
- Professional presentation - this includes the use of gallery-quality mounting and framing, clear and interesting documentation, and coherence of theme in multiple pieces
- Appropriateness - exhibit location to assure proper scale and visual harmony, in terms of consistency with the nature and purpose of the space

A wide range of art forms and styles will be considered. Materials will be returned, if requested.

The Arts Committee also encourages additional materials and your suggestions for other activities (tours, slide presentations, etc) that could enhance a viewer's understanding of the exhibits and encourage conversation on the issues they raise.

Common Area Display Spaces

Displays for the common areas are arranged on a rotating basis by the Arts Committee.

Basement Pre-Function Area

In the basement right outside of the main auditorium, when you first go down the stairs. This area is currently the long-term home to "Headland" by Dede Ward, "Urban Landscape" by Kim Thomson, and "Looking Back at the End of my History of Learning English" by Mo Bach (on loan from the State Arts Commission).

Lobby (1st Floor)

Along the east wall of the lobby is 35 linear feet of display space on the first floor. It is one of the first areas viewers see upon entering the building. It is home to Alfredo Arreguin's tryptic painting Encantada Jungla.

The west area of the lobby holds Alfredo Arreguin's glass piece The Froth (below). Along the west wall is a large gallery area for paintings.

Lobby (1st Floor)

Lobby (1st Floor)

Atrium (Rock Garden) (1st Floor)

There are public display spaces on all three floors of the atrium, of appropriate size for individual 2-D or 3-D works or small groupings of either type of work public art display. These spaces include:

- The east-facing wall of every elevator shaft/restroom cluster that projects into the atrium.
- The large atrium wall that faces the reception area for Bay G.
- On 2nd and 3rd floors, the atrium walls on either end of the front windows facing the A Bay.
- On the 2nd and 3rd floors, the wall at a right angle to the one facing the Executive Reception area.

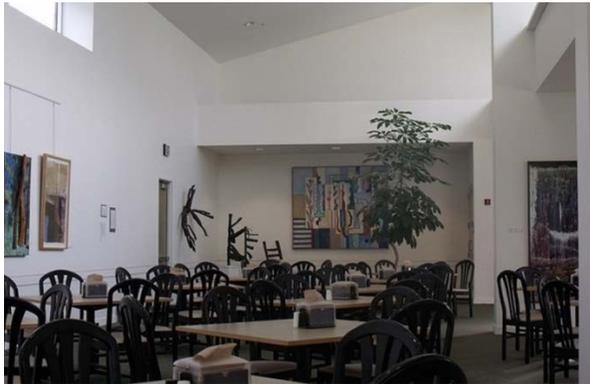

1st Floor Cafeteria

This well-lit seating area offers considerable wall space and extra security as facility is locked up each afternoon behind a see-through metal gate.

1st Floor Dining Room

Large and open with lots of natural light and visible from outside as well as inside, it currently features work by Robin Wassong and Alfredo Arreguin. It is best suited for larger pieces that complement the scale of the room, but could also be a site for a group of related medium sized works.

2nd Floor and 3rd Floor Galleries

Each gallery provides 60 linear feet of display space along two walls (one gray, one white) and is also suitable for sculptural pieces. It is the most closed, well-defined and often traveled through gallery space in the building.

The 2nd floor gallery is part of the hallway leading to Ecology's training rooms.

The 3rd floor gallery is part of the hallway leading to Ecology's Library.

Galley East Wall

Gallery West Wall

3rd Floor Library

Best suited for individual pieces or small groupings. Small works or those requiring additional security will likely be displayed here.

Program Display Spaces throughout the Building

Individual programs have discretion over materials to be displayed in the building beyond an imaginary line drawn by the edge of the cubicles that border the atrium aisles.

Programs may display art, awards, program information, maps and other materials, constrained only by the size and weight of the materials, compliance with fire codes, and the bounds of good taste.
